

very much annoyed by these goss but Democratic enemies in some of words, and in many of situations with which he preferred to have them over now on the subject of the most melancholy and disastrous, and was dangerous to the side of man's good digestion.

OUTSIDE MEETINGS.

There were three stands at the street at which the speaking was commenced at an early hour and continued nearly 11 o'clock. One of the stands was erected front of Cleve Hill. At this stand was Wm. H. Smith, a friend, and address was delivered by Augustus F. Dow, W. H. F. Stewart L. Webb, C. H. Shaw, and others. Another stand was in the rear of Fox's in Avenue A. Each stand was about twice as large as the other. The speakers were E. F. A. Drew, W. H. Andrews, Isaac Dyer, Charles S. Spencer, and others. On this stand there was a temperance sign, which was the following, or, more correctly speaking, inscription:

NEW-PATENT MEDICINE.

Mer of Bill-m-tal.

10 drums of Little Gun.

body-wrecked;

5 drams of Briskings;

body-heated;

5 scruples of Gout-bath;

body-thinned.

Operation, Nov. 1860.

Lincoln Eldest Son President.

A third stand was at the corner of Third avenue and Astor place. Chairman, G. Glanckin, esq., and among the transparencies at this stand were the following:

Stephen's Travels in Marse

5-cent.

Republican Vic. cry.

Rail Splitter's Work in the Pine Free State.

Result:

Democracy 2nd Out.

At a late hour a wagon drove in a Astor place, near Lafayette's place, who was mounted on a stand for speak ers, and Bryant's stand was also dealt out there to the meeting of friends.

The three stands in every direction were filled with people—how numbers were variously estimated from 8,000 to 10,000.

Patriotic displays were abundant, and the air was full of war rocks. Rowan, cauld, &c., &c.

The evening was a dog day of the principal piece which was in front of Cleve Hill.
